

Abstract Of The Disclosure

A computer-implemented dynamic pronunciation system and method that includes a dictionary storage unit for containing word pronunciation rules. A dictionary generation unit determines a first set of possible pronunciation rules for a pre-selected word. A neural network accepts word spelling as an input and generates at least one pronunciation rule as an output. The pronunciation rule from the neural network is used within the first set of possible pronunciation rules for the pre-selected word to form a pronunciation dictionary.